

THIN GOLD SHINE

He won a lifesaving award from Rave during the pandemic and is the all-around resident expert in the technical stuff and the day to day functions of the communications center here. In the last year he has been a Lead and has stepped up to explain to our management how things work, why things need to be handled a certain way, and to act as the intermediary in all of the various equipment, app and improvement measures needed to stay up to date in here. He is the heart of this center, respected amongst his peers, welcoming to new hires and the backbone when necessary to get things done. He's a rare mix garnering not only support in the center but also from various centers, as well as patrol, and every other department in our public safety division. He has various degrees ranging from several bachelors and master's programs in criminal justice, emergency management and most recently IT. He could be paid infinitely better than he is for the knowledge he possesses but has still humbly paved the way for the rest of us in here. He has been in the shadows for long enough and needs an opportunity to be recognized for everything he means to us and the community he serves. I hope that he is able to be honored by receiving a scholarship as he is the most deserving person I know.
